ODDS AGAINST CHINA; ARMIES FALLING BACK

JAPANESE FORCES CLOSING IN ON TWO SIDES

BY JAMES A. MILLS

Shanghai, Nov. 17 (Wednesday) (AP)—China was fighting a desperate, back-to-the-wall fight today to preserve her independence from Japan with the odds increasingly against her.

The government already was evacuating Nanking, the capital. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces were striving frantically to hold Soochow, pivotal point of the main Chinese defense line, against 250,000 Japanese stretched across a 110-mile front 50 miles west of Shanghai.

Civilians Terrified

Terrified Chinese were fleeing by thousands from the path of two Japanese armies—one striking west from Shanghai in a drive on Nanking, the other closing in on Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung province in north China.

China's forces in the north struggled to prevent the Japanese from crossing the Yellow river, the main barrier to Tsinanfu, despite heavy casualties from air and artillery attacks.

If the Japanese penetrate the powerful "Hindenburg line" anchored on Soochow, Changshu and Kashing, the Chinese were expected to fall back to new positions stretching from Kiangyin, on the Yangtze river, to Wusih, 100 miles east of Nanking.

Steamers Crowded

That line would be much shorter than the Soochow-Changshu-Kashing line, therefore considerably easier to defend. Behind it are what are said to be still stronger fortifications culminating in the hills around Nanking.

Central government civil ministries were to be dispersed among several cities with Hankow, on the Yangtze river 300 miles west of Shanghai, as the main haven. The ministry of communications began evacuating staff and records to a Hankow-bound steamer. The ministry of foreign affairs and finance also was to go there.

The United States and foreign embassies arranged the evacuation of their nationals but were confronted with an acute transportation problem. Refugees virtually were fighting for space on the few remaining steamers in Nanking's harbor.

Won't Desert Capital

Seventy American, 38 British and 100 German subjects still were in the capital and the number was mounting steadily as war refugees poured in from other cities closer to the front.

Military authorities remained at the capital which high officials declared would not be abandoned. They said Generalissimo Chiang himself would command Nanking's defenders to the last.

"In this dark hour," one of Chiang's advisers appealed to the world, "some assurance from foreign powers would bolster China's spirit immeasurably."

POWERS CRITICIZED

Brussels, Nov. 16 (AP)—Faced by a Japanese declaration that the Brussels conference had closed "forever" the door to mediation of the far eastern conflict, Norman H. Davis, head of the United States delegation, conferred with Russian officials to-

Lansing Physician Refuses To Accept State Appointment

Lansing, Nov. 16 (AP)—Governor Murphy declined tonight to comment on reports that Dr. Leo G. Christian, Lansing physician, had rejected appointment as a member of the state hospital commission.

Dr. Christian, reputedly irritated because the hospital commission had chosen Dr. Joseph E. Barrett as its director instead of a man he himself recommended, said he had no intention of entering "a public controversy with the governor."

Murphy said he believed a misunderstanding had led to Christian's refusal to serve. The doctor informed the governor by telegram simply that he would be "unhappy" as a member of the commission and had not filed a qualifying oath of office.

"I suggested, even urged," Governor Murphy said, "that the commission take two weeks to decide upon a director and pointed out that they were in no way bound by anything I had said to them. The members reported to me that same day and said they believed a director should be named at once, that there might be no delay in instituting the new program."

Dr. Christian refused to attend yesterday's meeting of the commission, and close friends said he would not attend others.

RUSSIA BREAKS WAR DEADLOCK

Obstacles for Removing Spanish Volunteers Are Removed

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—Soviet Russia, in an unexpected move, tonight removed a major obstacle to withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

She modified her opposition to granting belligerent rights to the warring Spanish factions and accepted a general plan approved by other non-intervention powers November 4 for removing foreign soldiers from the civil war.

With the exception of Russia, the other nations had agreed to extend belligerent rights to the Spanish government and the insurgents when "substantial progress" had been made in getting alien volunteers out of Spain.

Russia had insistd such rights should not be granted until all volunteers had been withdrawn, thus causing a stalemate in non-intervention efforts.

Ivan Maisky, Soviet representative on the non-intervention committee, said his government was willing to concede the point in order to expedite removal of the volunteers.

He said Russia would leave interpretation of "substantial withdrawal" until the question should be considered by the committee.

Port Huron's Coal Fire Is Unchecked

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Fire which threatens to detroy half of the reserve fuel supply of this city in a 45,000-ton coal pile on the St. Clair Coal and Dock Co. wharf continued today. It has been burning one week. Cranes are working to uncover the fire and move the coal before it burns but the fire is spreading underneath.

MYSTERY DEATH CASE REOPENED

Hostess in Chicago Night Club 'Knew Too Much,' Police Are Told

Chicago, Nov. 16. (AP)—The investigation of the mysterious slaying of Florence Thompson Castle—willowy night club hostess who was bludgeoned to death on the night of June 29, 1936—was reopened abruptly today.

Sergeant John Hanrahan said an unnamed informant told him the 24-year-old brunet was killed by members of a robber gang because she "knew too much" about their crimes.

Two of the four men named as associates in the band he added, were recently corraled in a roundup of holdup men and are now in custody.

The sergeant said that two days before Mrs. Castle's death the gangsters' car killed a messenger boy while they were fleeing from a handbook robbery. The informer told him, he added, that the girl roused their anger when she insisted they donate a purse of $1,000 or $2,000 to the victim's family.

The body of the comely butterfly of the bright light belt was found in bed in her hotel room.

Schawled in red lipstick on a mirror was this cryptic message: "Black Legion Game".

Underneath was drawn a skull and crossbones.

Her seven year old son, James Thompson, Jr., told detectives that a "black man" struck his mother with a brick as he lay beside her.

Investigators deduced the assailant was a white man who had darkened his face with black makeup.

Embezzlement Trial Opens At Manistee

Manistee, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—The trial of Charles G. Bigge, 60, former secretary-treasurer of the Filer Fibre Co., on a charge of embezzling $85,726 from the firm started here today.

A jury of 12 men, mostly farmers and small businessmen, was impaneled.

First prosecution witness to take the stand was Milbert Carlson, bookkeeper of the Fibre company, who was one of the principal witnesses at Bigge's examination last September.

Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, who came from Detroit to hear the case because Judge Max E. Neal is a stockholder in the firm, got the trial under way today after refusing last night the defendant's petition for postponement because of his alleged poor health.

FIVE MEN DIE, FOURTEEN HIT, HUNTING DEER

FLURRIES OF SNOW HELP HUNTSMEN IN PENINSULA

(By The Associated Press)

Michigan's 1937 deer hunting season had advanced far enough Tuesday that huntsmen's conversation changed from prospects to talk of antler points and pounds, five hunters were dead, and fourteen more were injured.

Two hunters died of gunshot wounds, another of knife wounds, and two more in automobile accidents while going to or leaving the deer country. Another lay near death from gunshot wound in the Grayling hospital.

Missing Man Found

Hunters still looked for the snow that cloudy skies and the weather bureau had promised for the last two days. A few snow flurries have been reported, but none of sufficient volume to facilitate tracking the much-sought bucks.

Good kills were reported in the Gladwin sections, the bucks weighing around 250 pounds. Reports from the upper peninsula were scant, but it was expected that heavy kills would be reported when the visiting army of more than 18,000 reaches the Straits of Mackinac on its way back.

At Ironwood one of two men reported lost in the woods returned Tuesday, no worse for a night in the wilds, while searching parties continued to look for another man reported missing.

Bullet Wound Fatal

Ben Jonanek, 23, of Ontonagon, returned to Connerville Tuesday. He had become separated from his hunting party Monday. Glen Potter, 21, of Levering, a CCC enrollee at Camp Norris, still was the object of a wide search. He was separated from the rest of his party Monday while hunting ten miles northeast of Ironwood.

At Reed City, Burton Nevenzell, 27, of Hamilton, died Tuesday of a gunshot wound suffered a few hours earlier in the woods north of Baldwin while hunting. Lake county sheriff's officers were searching for the person who fired the shot.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Fred Holler, 61, Cheboygan dairy farmer, died of knife wounds suffered while on a hunting expedition near Trout Lake. Although Sheriff Willard Welch said Holler apparently wounded himself while hacking at ropes that were holding a deer carcass to the side of an automobile, Ronald Holler, Detroit, and Ralph Holler, Cheboygan, were held for investigation.

Fifty Bucks Shot

Glenford Reeberg of Maybee, Mich., was killed late Monday near Harrison in a car accident. With Chester Hoffman of Maybee, Reeberg was returning from a hunting trip. Each of them had a deer. Hoffman was injured.

William Peterson, 23, of Saginaw, wounded Monday by an unknown

Three Kidnapers Escape From New York Prison

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Three convicted members of the "nation's last organized kidnap gang," armed with two guns and ready to "shoot it out," left a faint trail tonight for federal and state pursuers after an early morning jail break.

The trio—Percy Geary, 34, John Oley, 36, and Harold Crowley, 35—trussed up six guards, menaced them with smuggled guns early this morning and fled from the Onondaga county penitentiary at nearby Janesville, where they were held pending appeal from federal prison sentences for the 1933 O'Connell kidnaping.

The three men, convicted with five others last Aug. 12 of abducting John J. O'Connell, Jr., scion of a politically prominent Albany, N. Y., family, drove in a commandeered car to Syracuse after their escape and disappeared.

Chief Inspector Albert B. Moore of the New York state police bureau of criminal investigation described them as "desperate men, ready to shoot it out with anyone who tries to stop them."

Their escape came less than a week after the arrest in Los Angeles of James Sweeney, last of 13 men indicted for the kidnaping. Two suspects committed suicide in jail while awaiting trial and two pleaded guilty to lesser charges after testifying for the government.

At the trial in Binghamton, United States Attorney Abraham E. Gold characterized the defendants as "the nation's last organized kidnap ring." They were sentenced to terms ranging from 28 to 77 years.

More than 350 state police and scores of federal agent and Syracuse police, armed with machine guns, patrolled all highways leading from Syracuse in what Capt. George P. Dutton, deputy superintendent of state police, described as "New York's greatest manhunt."

The escape, including such stock props as sawed bars and smuggled guns, was led by Geary "with apparent outside help," H. H. Paddock, jail superintendent, said.

Paddock said Geary sawed the bars from his cell door, held up the guards and forced them to release Oley and Crowley. Then, he added, the three kidnaped Edward Hayes, another guard, and forced him to drive them five miles to Syracuse.

There Hayes was released and spread the alarm.

Five Members of Royal Family Killed in Belgian Plane Crash

Ostend, Belgium Nov. 16. (AP)—A flaming Belgian airliner crashed in the "white death" of a Belgian fog today, all but wiping out the ancient grand ducal line of Hesse Bei Rhein.

All 11 occupants of the London-bound plane were killed—including five members of the former German royal family which has close blood ties with every reigning house in Europe.

The victims:

Their sons, Prince Ludwig Ernst, 6, and Prince Alexander George, 4.

The grand duke's mother, the Dowager Grand Duchess Eleonore Von Hesse Bei Rhein, 66, widow of Grand Duke Ludwig who died recently.

Herr Martens, German glider expert.

Lina Hahn, maid.

Three crew members.

The news overwhelmed Prince Ludwig Von Hesse Bei Rhein, who was waiting at Croydon airfield in London to welcome his mother, brother and members of his brother's family as his wedding guests.

The swift succession of deaths in the 16th century family created three Grand Dukes Hesse Bei Rhein in a month. George, who was killed today, just had succeeded to the title on the death of his father. Ludwig, 29, now becomes the grand duke.

The English girl he was to wed quietly possibly tomorrow, will become the grand duchess. She is Miss Margaret Campbell Geddes, daughter of Sir Auckland Geddes, former British ambassador to the United States. The wedding already had been postponed once because of the death of Ludwig's father a week ago.

Hunter Tags Buck Shot By Another; Both Are Arrested

Munising, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Gordon Birbridge, of Paw Paw, today paid a $50 fine and costs in Justice T. J. Walters' court after pleading guilty to a charge of attaching a seal to the carcass of a deer which he had not killed. Birbridge said he found the carcass in the woods and that because it had no seal on it he decided he would attach his own.

The deer was claimed by Everett Pangborn, of Munising, who also was arrested for not attaching a seal to a deer after killing it. Disposition of his case was continued until Thursday.

Liquor Commission Warned To Kick Out Political Climbers

BY. T. H. PECK

Lansing, Nov. 16 (AP)—Governor Murphy warned the liquor control commission and its employes today that he would intervene personally unless the harmony and morale of the organization were restored at once.

The executive appealed to the entire Lansing personnel of the commission — approximately 300 persons assembled during an impromptu half-hour holiday—to "kick out pretenders to political influence," bring the accounting and purchasing end of the commission's work "to the same level of efficiency" as distribution, and end "factionalism, cliques and petty conspiracies" which may have impaired the agency's efficiency in the past.

Murphy said that "anyone who claims political influence" in seeking business from the commission "is a pretender."

"I have asked the commission to kick such figures out of this building and keep them out," he declared. "I think this has been done."

The governor praised Commissioner Hale G. Knight, the only Republican member, for conducting the state's liquor distribution system in a "very satisfactory" fashion. Accounting and purchasing must be on the same plane, he insisted.

Murphy expressed the "utmost confidence" in Chairman Edward W. McFarland and other members of the commission as men who would render "not only honest, but competent and efficient service." He appealed for complete loyalty of employes to the commission, declaring "there is no place in the picture for either spoilsmanship or factionalism."

MEN ARRESTED AT FORD PLANT

Union Claims They Were Not Allowed to Put Out Literature

Detroit, Nov. 16 (AP)—The United Automobile Workers headquarters charged in a statement tonight that eight men, engaged in distribution of union literature at the Ford Motor Co.'s Highland Park plant, had been arrested by Highland Park police this afternoon.

Larry S. Davidow, UAW attorney, said the men were told they were violating a city ordinance requiring news vendors to be licensed. Davidow said the men were released on his protest and a conference arranged for tomorrow with Highland Park officials.

"The action of the Highland Park police is discriminatory and another evidence of the influence of Ford's millions in attempting to censor the voice of labor," Davidow said.

Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president of the UAW in charge of the Ford organization drive, said he had been assured the union would have protection in distributing a special "Ford" edition of the UAW newspaper at Dearborn tomorrow. He said the Dearborn safety council had allowed the distribution.

Autopsy Repeated In Glendale Case

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—A second autopsy of the body of Mrs. Evelyn Wright, slain last week in Glendale, Calif., was performed here tonight at the request of Los Angeles authorities.

Dr. Jerry Keans, Cook county coroner's physician, said he made an examination of the vital organs, but he declined to explain the purpose of the second medical inquiry.

Mrs. Wright and John B. Kimmel, a friend, were shot to death in her home. Her husband, Paul Wright, an air line executive, was charged with the killings.

The autopsy was held following funeral services for Mrs. Wright this afternoon.

CROP CONTROL IS NOT READY FOR CONGRESS

WELL-LAID PLANS OF ROOSEVELT GO AWRY

BY RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Nov. 16. (AP)—Administration leaders helplessly watched their well-laid plans go awry today and President Roosevelt's special session program came to an abrupt, if temporary, halt.

In the senate, meantime, southerners conducted an old-fashioned filibuster against anti-lynching legislation, adorned with the usual trimmings of full-throated oratory and lengthy reading from old Congressional Records.

In the house, while confusion got the better of speaker Bankhead's gavel, Republicans spoke bitterly of calling a special session with no work ready to be done. Then they blocked an effort to adjourn until Friday.

The root of the difficulty was the fact that, while both houses had agreed to take up crop control legislation immediately upon reconvening, their agriculture committees were not ready to submit a bill for consideration on the floor.

Tax Revision Deferred

The president had called for a farm bill, wage and hour legislation, government reorganization and regional planning, and had given a signal to go ahead with preliminary work on tax revision.

Only government reorganization legislation was ready. House leaders decided yesterday that the time was inopportune for considering it, and in the senate the anti-lynching issue was interposed today.

The committees which have charge of revenue legislation indicated that tax revision, which has been demanded as a means of encouraging business, might be deferred until January.

The wage and hour bill passed last session by the senate was still securely sewed up in the house rules committee, but an effort was begun today to rip it loose by means of a petition. If 218 signatures are obtained, the bill will go on to the floor automatically.

Senate In Snarl

The senate, meeting for the first business day of the new session, quickly found itself tangled in an intricate parliamentary snarl.

The cause was that in addition to designating crop control as the first order of business, the senate had made the anti-lynching bill the second item upon its program.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, tried in vain to work out a back-stage agreement with the proponents of the anti-lynching measure, under which the senate could go ahead with the government reorganization bill of Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.)

Byrnes, a bitter foe of anti-lynching bills, as well as the author of the reorganization measure, stole a march on the supporters of the former by obtaining the floor at the beginning of the session.

However, in the afternoon Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) succeeded in making a motion that the anti-lynching bill be debated.

Then the filibuster began. Bitterly, Senator Connally (D-Tex.) warned his colleagues that an effort to pass the bill would cause "some little delay." He went into a long dissertation on the fact that the special session was called to enact the president's program.

GAS SHORTAGE HITS 2 CITIES

Pipe Shipments Delayed for Lines to Clare and Mt. Pleasant

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—A pipe shortage coupled with diminished output from a new gas well today again brought a threat of an acute natural gas shortage to Mt. Pleasant and Clare.

Four miles of the necessary 13-mile pipe line from Mt. Pleasant to the Broomfield pool has been constructed but inability to get pipe shipments may delay completion several weeks. Engineers say there is enough gas in Broomfield to prevent a shortage if the pipe line can be finished before zero weather.

Sunday a three-million-foot gas well blew in only a half mile from the gas corporation of Michigan's main line. A pipe gang battled mud and rain all night to build a flow line to the well but less than an hour after it was "tied in" the well blew out its casings and was flooded with water. H. L. Gentry, gas engineer, said there is a little hope of saving the well now. Gentry added that a five degree drop in temperature will make the situation here acute.

Sitdown At Pontiac Plant Is Abandoned

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Striking automobile workers, abandoning a 12-hour sit-down in the Fisher Body plant here, gave assurances today against further strikes during negotiation of their grievance, and the management agreed to reopen the factory.

First resumption of operations affected the tool and die, sheet metal and sheet metal press departments, with night shift workers reporting. Other departments were called for 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Dorr Mitchell, president of a United Automobile Workers local, who directed the evacuation of the plant at 8:25 o'clock this omrning, termed the strike "unauthorized." Mitchell gave the "no strike" assurances in a conference with the Fisher management this afternoon.

A statement issued by the Japanese embassy sharply criticized the powers participating in the conference, particularly Russia, and said the declaration adopted yesterday criticizing Japan was not "worthy of being published in the name of the conference."

It said that Japan carefully had left the way open for mediation in her reply to the conference's peace bid last Friday, but that no effort had been made by the powers to pursue the matter.

Russian circles saw the Japanese statement as an attempt to drive a wedge between the United States and the other powers before the next stage of the conference.

Way Left Open

"It is highly regrettable for the powers they did not take advantage of the paragraph in the Japanese reply by which Japan carefully opened the door to mediation, which, after the declaration, they have closed forever," the statement said.

The statement referred to a paragraph which said Japan "would be glad if the powers should contribute to the stabilization of eastern Asia in a manner consonant with realities of the situation."

After mentioning the conference declaration's allusion to the sacredness of international agreements, the embassy's statement referred to the part played in framing the declaration by nations which "repudiated payment of their debts to the United States" and "vote things to which they do not adhere."

Of Russia, which is not a signatory of the nine-power treaty, but is participating in the conference, it said:

"The power which has shown the greatest zeal in favor of the declaration, without being a signatory, is precisely the one most opposed to the above principles."

Accident Near Manistique

The conservation department at Lansing reported mild weather below the straits was causing hunters to hurry home with their kill to avoid spoilage.

At Manistique, Charles Redeker notified officers he had accidentally shot and wounded his hunting companions, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox of that city, while hunting Monday afternoon 27 miles north of here.

He carried Mrs. Fox a mile through the brush.

He said he mistook the couple for a deer he had seen in the brush, shot Mrs. Fox in the abdomen with buckshot and her husband in the left thigh.

Leopold arrived for a three-day visit by which he hopes to strengthen the friendship between his country and the British empire.

A few hours earlier, Viscount Halifax left for Berlin to confer with Chancellor Adolf Hitler on matters of importance to British-German relations.

Lord Halifax entrained for Berlin after a last minute conference with foreign secretary Anthony Eden. He and Hitler will hold "informal" conversations on colonies, chances for European security arrangements, the Rome-Berlin axis and other questions.

Wallace today to help clarify the confused crop control situation.

A dispute between senate and house sub-committees on cotton regulations appeared likely to delay the whole administration program for ten days.

Chairman Smith (D-S C), shouting determination to call the senate agriculture committee together every day "and nights and Sunday, too, if necessary" to get out a bill, announced a conference tomorrow with the secretary.

"We've asked Wallace and his crowd up here to explain just what all these farm bills mean," he said.

Rail Earnings Cut By Operating Costs

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—A survey of leading railroad earnings for the first nine months today indicated earning power of most roads had been hit by higher operating costs, together with slowing in business in recent months.

Profits for common shareholders of such roads as Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were smaller than in the comparable 1936 period, despite the fact traffic most of the time was running well ahead of last year.

Worcester Recount Elects Republican

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 16. (AP)—William A. Bennett (R) was elected mayor of Worcester, defeating Mayor John S. Sullivan (D) by 96 votes in a recount of the municipal election completed today. The final figures were Bennett 35,864, Sullivan 35,768.

On election night November 2 Sullivan apparently had been reelected by 25 votes.

Sullivan protested the recount to the registrars of voters, who conducted it, but was overruled.

Sullivan said he would appeal to the state supreme court.

Yachtsman Killed By Revolver Bullet

Marblehead, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP)—A bullet from a .38 calibre revolver tonight killed Richard de Blois Boardman, 59, nationally known yachtsman, in what Medical Examiner Ignatius Zielinski described as a suicide.

Boardman, socially prominent Boston real estate operator, died at the Mary Alley hospital four hours after he was found outside his summer home with a bullet wound in his head.

GOV'T REFORMS ARE DISCUSSED

Interesting Talk Given by George Ruwitch at Forum Meeting

Drawing a parallel between governmental reform and the automobile industry, George Ruwitch, member of the Escanaba high school faculty, told listeners at the forum at the city hall last night that we have an old model, badly broken down and in need of repair.

Ruwitch said that our governmental system is antiquated in comparison with modern methods of business and reforms have not kept pace with those in business.

Using the county government as an example, Ruwitch traced the original history, saying that it dates back, in some instances, as far as 1670 in its origin. It was designed to function under conditions which have no parallel in modern times and yet no attempt has been made at reformation in that system on an extensive scale. It is often referred to as our "greatest national extravagance," Ruwitch said, and H. S. Gilbertson has termed it the "dark continent of American politics."

Many Disparities Exist

The speaker pointed to the disparities existing between the county set-ups in various sections of the country. He said that, while one county in the United States is composed of but 22 square miles, another in Texas is composed of 20,000 square miles and the average is 500. One county in North Dakota, Ruwitch said, has but 80 people while Cook county in Illinois has more than four million. The average population of counties of the United States is 20,000 people.

Ruwitch said that, under such varied circumstances, it is of little wonder that there is gross inefficiency in the county system. He said that in 1913 the per capita cost of county government was $4.50, in 1922 it was $10.22 and, at its peak in 1927 was $15.33. It was pointed out that the benefits in services to the constituents have not increased in proportion to the increased cost of government.

Some reforms have been brought about by the depression, Ruwitch said, but many remain to be instigated. He advanced four proposals which have been offered to cure the evils of the existing situation: (1) centralizing authority in a county manager; (2) consolidation of counties or cities; (3) abolition of county rule; and (4) county home rule.

The ideal county set-up would be, according to experts quoted by the speaker, one in which the population was 50,000, the area 400 square miles and the resources amounting to $2,500,000.

If an equitable government service is to be rendered in all sections of the land and to all persons, the speaker concluded, the more abundantly blessed units must be forced to bear a portion of the burden of those not so fortunate in natural resources.

Ruwitch's discussion, clearly and forcefully presented and backed by a considerable amount of research work, was highly interesting and informative and provided much food for thought and discussion which followed.

Ray LaPorte was chairman of the meeting.

Roosevelt Thanked For His One Vote

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 16. (AP)—Cecil Marshall, Democrat, said today he was much obliged to President Roosevelt—and 1,097 other citizens—for electing him highway supervisor by one vote over Levi Sprague, Republican.

A recount authorized by the state supreme court gave Marshall 1,098 certified votes, Sprague 1,097, in the Nov. 2 election.

Since the president cast his vote here, it was easy for Marshall to see he needed the chief executive's vote, as well as the others.

Marshall will be the first Democrat to hold the post in 35 years.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion. Sold everywhere. (c) Bell & Co. 1937.

Chief of Police Urges Drivers to Use Care in Bad Weather

A plea to automobile drivers to use particular care in driving on slippery streets and in inclement weather was issued yesterday by Chief of Police M. F. Ettenhofer, who pointed to the dangerous condition of the city streets following the first snowfall of yesterday.

Ettenhofer urged that precautionary measures be taken to prevent accidents between two machines and between one car and pedestrians. He asks that drivers be particularly careful in the presence of children, pointing out that the slippery pavement might prevent stopping of a car quickly enough to avoid hitting a child.

Other points to remember, Ettenhofer said, were to approach stop streets slowly in order to be able to stop completely on the slippery pavement, to drive slowly on all slippery streets and respect the other driver's inability to stop without sliding even though he may be certain of the right-of-way, use precautions on approaching blind corners, and to be careful on backing away from curbs since approaching cars may not be able to stop quickly to avoid an accident if necessary.

The chief also called attention to the city ordinance which limits parking on Ludington street to a half hour during the winter months between 2 a. m. and 7 a. m. This ordinance was drafted in order to prevent long time parking during winter months which might hinder work of snow removal crews.

Who Said Pills? It's Fun to Keep "Regular"!

Is keeping "regular" a chore in your family? Does it mean over-stimulating your intestines with cathartics? Then here's good news! You can AVOID common constipation and cathartics, and have a grand time doing it!

Instead of abusing your intestines, eat a NATURAL laxative food. Instead of bad-tasting pills and liquids—ENJOY crunchy, toasted Kellogg's All-Bran with milk or cream and fruits. Or in All-Bran muffins, or All-Bran cookies.

All-Bran will KEEP you "regular" as the time-table—but it works so differently from harsh purgatives. It doesn't over-stimulate your intestines; it gives them TWO things they crave and need. First, All-Bran provides "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. And next, the intestinal-tonic vitamin "B_1." All-Bran is a good source of this vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract.

Use All-Bran regularly: eat two tablespoons every day and drink plenty of water. The results will delight you! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The Land Problem

INDICATIONS are that one of the plans of Congress to aid agriculture will be to strengthen and extend the government's policy of retiring marginal farm lands. Extension of this policy would be, according to observers, an indirect control of farm production, since marginal agricultural land, or land which is too poor to provide a satisfactory standard of living for the farmers who operate it, constitutes a substantial proportion of the actual and potential agricultural area of the United States.

More than 100,000,000 acres, or nearly one-fifth of the tenantable acreage of the nation, consists of inferior land for farm use. No part of the country is free from this type of land, and as a consequence the interest manifested in the subject is widespread. Western representatives are particularly interested because it is in the mountainous or semi-arid regions where the problem is more acute and where a large number of people are directly affected. Much of the original land in all localities has become marginal or inferior due to poor management of soil.

The problem of dealing with marginal land first centers in tax delinquency, thus undermining estimated tax structures. Tax certificates on one-fourth of the land area in seventeen counties in Northern Wisconsin were sold in a recent year on account of delinquent taxes. In Hubbard County, Minnesota, a recent survey revealed that 36 per cent of all land outside of towns and villages is tax delinquent. In one township 80 per cent of the land is tax delinquent. In three States 20,000,000 acres of land are in this sad state.

According to the estimates of the United States of Agriculture, there are 272,000,000 acres of land in the United States suitable for forest only. There are about 60,000 acres of desert, 20000,000 rocky land, and approximately 1,000,000 acres of coastal beaches not suitable for agricultural purposes. These figures do not include several million acres of unreclaimable marshes. Not all of this vast area is now producing farm products, but enough to make the social and economic problem of primary importance to the nation. The fact that much of this marginal land is cultivated by tenants makes the problem more difficult to solve, for while it is one problem to retire the land, it is another and greater problem to retire or resettle the tenants. The economic and social aspects of the situation are so closely related that they can not be separated.

Farm income in these land areas has become an economic problem. In one of the cut-over counties of the Lake States the average net cash farm income of 106 families in a recent year was only $559. This was much less, or $350 per farm, in eleven hilltop areas in New York State. Such conditions have a tendency to lower community morale, lesson school support, retard or prevent community projects—especially road-building—and practically debar farm families from acquiring modern home conveniences.

The marginal land problem being one of nation-wide importance, individuals, States, and the National Government are uniting forces for its solution. Many States are encouraging land owners to reforest their marginal lands through the payment of bounties, tax exemptions, and limited tax valuations. In some States having a timber-yield tax, the State governments compensate the counties and townships for the loss of revenue resulting from classification of land within their borders under forest tax laws, by contributing a certain percentage on each acre of land so classified. Five States pay bounties on forest plantations, while sixteen States exempt partially or totally from taxation the value of land or the growth, or both, where the land is in immature forest.

Evidence would seem to point to the fact that in the past a mistaken policy has been followed in clearing new lands to replace what was thought to be worn-out ground, when in reality the soil was only depleted or starved for lack of proper crop rotation and scientific cultivation. Under the program of reforestation it is the hope of agricultural leaders that America has learned a costly lesson in carelessly denuding millions of acres without an actual need. Forestry experts say the future watchword must be conservation and not clearing. Present difficulties with marginal lands seem to justify this statement.

Laws and Good Sense

THE Philadelphia bureau of municipal research, trying to laugh obsolete ordinances from city records by publicizing ridiculous laws that were never repealed, is setting a good example for both sides over what is and what isn't constitutional.

Already unearthed are these sample verboten: smoking on bridges, in public squares and parks; carrying umbrellas in public markets; riding velocipedes in parks.

Even in that day of simple living, those "lawless" actions involved no great matters of public defense, health, morals or welfare. They involved nothing more than individual exercise of good taste and judgment by citizens.

A good many lawmakers today are making the same mistake of sticking their official noses in where they have no business. Merely by distinguishing between legal essentials and non-essentials, those lawmakers can save themselves from looking silly. It isn't a matter of the Constitution at all.

To Dictators (Personal)

ONCE the "strong man" virus bites, the effect is hard to throw off. Even Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany fleeing from Berlin as his mirage of a place in the sun faded, found it difficult to forget the glory he left.

His party was halted at the Dutch border by a sergeant who requested their weapons. The retinue was aghast. "The Emperor hand his sword to a common sergeant? The Emperor will deal only with a general!"

That was on Armistice Day, 1918. Twenty years later, celebrating the anniversary of his exile, Wilhelm is just the weariest and oldest of the Hohenzollerns, an exiled woodchopper and a classic example to the current set of ditators and international would-be's—if they were smart enough to know it.

No Ticket Fixing

MEMBERS of the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police have announced a move to eliminate the practice of "ticket fixing" in an effort to promote more respect for traffic laws.

In the enforcement of the law it is important that the police show no favoritism. If persons with influence are able to drive recklessly, run through arterial stops and commit other violations without being prosecuted, the whole system of enforcement will break down.

During the past several months, the Escanaba police department has followed the policy of playing no favorites with those found to be violating the parking ordinance. There were some complaints at first from those who had the strange the notion tnat they were above the law, but eventually there was a satisfactory observance of the regulation on the part of the motoring public.

RAMSAY MACDONALD
(Detroit News)

Probably any just estimate of the services of Ramsay MacDonald, British statesman, will be criticised by his admirers as inadequate, and by his detractors as exaggerated. So positive a character puts definite cleavage between friendship and enmity. Time will be needed to evaluate him properly.

The dimensions of his influences are indicated by the fact that he had the experience of being regarded for a time as one of the most respected and trusted leaders of his people, and again of being roundly reproached and rejected. This was due to his insistence upon fidelity to principle rather than consistency in party methods. He was an idealist before being a politician, and adherence to ideals seemed to him more worthy than party approval.

Born in poverty, he sympathized with the poor and sought to shape world policies to remove conditions that made poverty bitter. In pursuit of that purpose, he always thought of himself as a socialist, but he refused to run into the extravagances of conduct which because associated with many socialistic movements. He knew British character and realized that any socialistic progress would have to come through processes of political evolution.

He hated war, and when his nation was plunged into war through what he believed to be ill-advised policies, he refused to share the responsibility of wartime administration. The bitter feeling that this decision brought against him, he suffered with equanimity In trying to assist in the readjustments of peace, he permitted his idealism to mislead his estimates of possible attainments. He strove for more than the world was ready to accept, and again his failure lessened his popularity. Yet he never lost faith in the possibility of nations solving their problems by friendly conference.

It is characteristic of the British system that the services of such a man were not lost to the country through many years of usefulness. The luster of Ramsay MacDonald's fame will brighten as time erases prejudices.

HIGHWAY SIDEWALKS
(Chicago Daily News)

Highway sidewalks for pedestrians along heavily traveled roads are being increasinly adopted, according to the American Public Works Association. Massachusetts appropriated nearly $8,000,000 last year for the construction of highway footways. New York this year provided for such construction by an amendment to the highway liaw, making it possible to finance with state highway funds the building of sidewalks and installation of lights along state highways outside cities and villages. The superintendent of public works is empowered to let contracts for such improvements where he considers them necessary. State engineers estimate that sidewalk construction will cost on an average of $3,000 a mile.

MORE DIFFICULT PAROLE
(Sault Ste. Marie News)

The parole system in Michigan has been strengthened by requiring convicts to serve their minimum sentences before paroles will be considered. Each case will be dealt with on its own merits without application from the offenders by a non-political board qualified to pass upon the situation from every relevant point of view.

This will end the granting of early parols to convicts who happen to have political pull or influence. Moreover, it will assure the serving of a reasonable amount of time as punishment for crime already committed.

This departure in Michigan will be watched by the rest of the country with interest for there is a growing recognition of the fact that parole methods must be strenghtened if the administration of justice is to be something more than an irresponsible farce.

The A. F. of L. and C. I. O. having refused each other's demands for unconditional surrender, the next session of the "compromise conference" ought to be able to discuss actual compromise offers.

We always like to visit the sick. They can't get away when we start to tell them about that sick spell we had, too.

New York—If you were overlord of rearmed Germany and wanted to snatch the golden Ukraine from Russia, how would you go about it?

You'd have to get through the barrier of small countries that separates you from the Soviet Union. You'd certainly regard Czechoslovakia as a possible gateway. If you thought that was the logical door, how would you proceed?

That's exactly the terrifying problem little Czechoslovakia is trying to solve as she cowers in the path of a possible German avalanche.

—TANKARDS OF BEER—

Germany's hostility to Russia has been trumpeted from the housetops. The seizure of the Ukraine—land of milk and honey—long has been a topic of open discussion over tankards of beer throughout the Fatherland. Did not Reichsfuehrer Hitler himself say in his autobiography that German expansion must be eastward?

Czechoslovakia's worst nightmare is that she may become a second Belgium.

An alternative would be Nazification by "peaceful" means. This would be the preliminary to her "willing" participation in any German endeavor be it an assault on Russia—or something else.

This seems to be Germany's chosen course, for the Nazifying process is moving apace. Its success would make the baby republic a vassal of Germany.

One would not go so far as to say that this necessarily would presage a Russo-German war, but such a conflict might easily come.

—AN UNHAPPY POSITION—

Czechoslovakia is in a most unhappy position. She is a product of the World war and is constructed of bits of territory torn from enemy countries which crowd against her.

Not only do unfriendly eyes watch across some of her borders, but there is dissension within. The Czechs and the Slovaks, for instance, don't like each other, to say the least. And besides them there are Germans, Ruthenians, Hungarians and Poles.

One has only to cross the Czechoslovakian boundaries, as the writer has done more than once, to catch the jarring notes both within and without. It is an exasperating but illuminating experience to pass from Czechoslovakia into Austria, or vice versa, and see the gorgeously uniformed border officials make life miserable for the unfortunate travelers.

Some 3½ million of Czechoslovakia's population—nearly a quarter—are of German extraction, taken over with the territory sliced from Austria. Most of them live in Bohemia, richest part of the country, although adjoining Moravia has a large number.

Bohemia is the gem of Central Europe. There lie the coal mines and the vast industries which once were Austria's pride. There are the steel works, and munitions factories which rank among the world's greatest. A rich prize for any country!

—LIKE POISON—

The German citizens—they used to rule the Czechs and hate them like poison—are about the most vocal part of the population. Just now their voices are raised for "autonomy" for themselves, and the Berlin Foreign Office is interesting itself vigorously in their welfare.

Their leader is Konrad Henlein, a very Teutonic individual. His energy and ability are demonstrated by the fact that the German party already holds second place in parliament. It has fortyfour seats against the forty-five of the Agrarians. This means 44 seats, more or less, for Nazidom.

With this encouragement the German Fuehrer is pursuing his policy of advancing by peaceful means wherever possible. Maybe the Germanic population will bring Czechoslovakia into the Nazi fold, as happened in Danzig, for example.

In any event, "peaceful penetration" is much safer than use of force, if anybody should think of such a thing. Any military intervention by Germany would precipitate another European war.

Czechoslovakia has a crack army. France and Russia are bound to come to her defense. So (theoretically) are Rumania and Yugoslavia, the other members of the Little Entente, but war does funny things to agreements.

Thus Czechoslovakia is entitled to figure that Nazification is the main threat to her from Berlin. This would mean virtual annexation.

That rather puts the last surviving democracy of Central Europe right between the devil and the deep blue sea.

But she has as president Eduard Benes—and he has squirmed out of tight places in his time.

New York Column

New York—Next to those with social aspirations who are hoping to receive the Duke and Duchess of Windsor before they cancelled their American trip, the folk who felt the keenest disappointment were the denizens of Tin Pan Alley.

Those lyrical opportunists had submitted a innumerable stack of songs to the publishers along Song Row in which the Duke and Duchess figured as hero and heroine. One, even thought it perished a-borning, may be remembered in the dim future, if only for its memorable name. It had been entitled "Wally Wolly Woo" and it was composed in swingtime.

Friendly Struggle

Sidewalk Scene: They have been picketing at this shop a long time and, apparently, without signs of compromise inside. In this span of time, pickets and employer have become quite friendly; they exchanged greetings in the morning and when they go home. And none of the malice of the class struggle seems to have crept into their mutual dealings.

The other morning was a rainy one and, intrepidly, the pickets marched back and forth with sandwich signs protesting Unfair Treatment. In the drizzle, the shop keeper came out with a pair of umbrellas; and graciously tendered them to the boys.

Sign of Winter

If there is any doubt about winter coming on, the Rockefellers have dispelled it with the opening of the Ice Skating Pond in the Sunken Plaza of Radio City. A veritable St. Maritz in Manhattan, this is the outdoor rink where the ice forms through a system of freezing pipes and is not dependent upon the weather.

Two orchestras provide a musical atmosphere for the skaters and both sides of the pond are flanked by continental cafes and luxurious restaurants. Skating waiters patrol the pond with light edibles and hot drinks and at various times during the day and night, exhibition skaters cut capers for the assemblage. By mid-December the pond will be the most congested caravansary in town.

News Behind The News

BY H. R. BAUKHAGE

Copyright, 1937, By The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

Washington—Another story of intramural government sleuthing may soon leak out of the files of the secret investigators. For a long time it has been common talk in the government that department of interior telephones were tapped and reports made of conversations to the high officials of the department.

The department has an efficient investigating branch of its own which has a legitimate function in line of regular duty. Now, according to a tale whispered by those who don't have to tap wires to know everything that is going on, this branch of the department — or someone else on the outside (which seems inconceivable—has been fooling with the telephones right up in the big front offices, those of Secretary Ickes and his immediate aides.

What, if anything, the secretary has learned about attempts to listen in on his conversations cannot be stated, but it is said on pretty good authority that telephone representatives have been called in to see if his wires are being tapped or not.

Early in the New Deal, Louis Glavis, one-time investigator in the famous Ballinger-Pinchot case during Theodore Roosevelt's regime, was rehired at his old job. Later he resigned, and it was rumored that he had been too zealous in his activities. A new man was appointed, said to be in closer accord with the secretary's office.

FRAZIER IS CYNICAL

As the committees wrangle over the Farm bill, Senator Frazier, lone Republican member of the Senate agriculture subcommittee which plowed up the grass-root sentiment in the West and Middle West, looks with a somewhat cynical eye on the results of the investigation.

"The majority of those attending the hearings of our sub-committee," he says, "seem to favor the Pope-McGill bill, which is really the Farm Bureau bill and has the backing of Secretary Wallace and the administration."

But senator Frazier is inclined to take some of the evidence behind this support with a grain of salt.

"Of course," he will tell you privately, "there was a good deal of manufactured sentiment for 'The' bill as they called it, and it was evident that county agents had been instructed to turn out large gatherings whenever they could."

Meanwhile, members of a southern state legislature have arrived in Washington with some interesting observations on some of their own investigations.

They agreed that, at first glance, the farmer was in favor of some kind of control, but found on beating the bushes themselves that, when they asked the farmers what they meant by "control," there seemed to be a difference of opinion.

Most of the control desired, it appeared on carefully questioning the farmers, was the kind that could be applied chiefly, if not exclusively, to the other fellow.

Which gives you a rough idea of what the special session is up against.

WALLACE SMASHES TRADITION

While the legislators scrap over the letter of the law, Secretary Wallace goes right ahead with the legislation in hand and makes the most of it. In a modest, routine announcement, which made very little splash in the public prints, he announced an historic act. He broke a rock that southern economists say has been around Dixie's neck since the Civil War.

It was the smashing of the hoary tradition of "a dollar a day," which has been the unwritten minimum (and in most cases maximum wage law in many places in the South besides the cotton fields.

"A minimum wage rate of $1.50 per day for cutting cane in the 1937 Louisiana sugar-cane crop," says the secretary edict, must be paid by producers who apply for payments under the Sugar Act of 1937.

Texas planters are organizing to protect their cotton field from cotton-stealing bandits. In order, we presume, that they may have some cotton left to plow under for the government.

Peoria's Evald Peterson pulled the phone from the wall when, in 21 trials, he railed to get the connection. Neither could the police, after a rush trip to the scene.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A HAPPY DAY

She woke one morning with a strange
Determination in her mind:
She would be happy, for a change,
Whatever day she chanced to find.
She smiled a bit, imagining—
A good beginning, by the way;
There isn't any better thing
With which to start a happy day.

The things she liked she liked with all
Her heart that day, and even shared,
And didn't bother to recall
The things for which she never cared.
The things that were not to her taste
She didn't scold, just passed them by,
But not a good thing went to waste
That day, and maybe that was why.

Unkindness was a speck of dust
She brushed away, and then forgot;
She was determined nothing must
Disturb this way, if kind or not.
And yet how many more were kind
Than she had ever thought before;
For, with unkindness out of mind,
You do observe the kindness more.

Less busy with her cares, she found
The time to help another near;
And then it seemed that all around
Were helping one another here.
Then she came home, came home at last,
Not half as weaary, twice as gay,
And added to the lovely past
The memory of a happy day.

STEAM HEATING TO START SOON

Engineer to Test Line for Pressure Here on Friday

An engineer from the American District Heating company of Chicago is expected to be in Escanaba Friday to test the pressure on the city's new steam heating line in preparation for final installation to the three buildings to be served.

City Manager George Bean said yesterday that laying of the line has been completed and final installation with the customers' buildings will be contingent upon outcome of the line tests.

If pressure tests prove satisfactory, connections with the Sherman hotel and the municipal garage are expected to be completed by the early part of next week. Some materials are necessary before installation can be completed in the liquor comission building.

Bean yesterday expressed satisfaction at progress being made on the work and said that he expects the project to prove a successful one. Only three buildings are being serviced at present because of limited facilities at the gas plant, and the project is expected to be an experimental one for the first year, with a careful check being kept on production, consumption and comparative costs.

Deer Hunters Filling Licenses in District

Satisfactory hunting results in the various camps in the Escanaba region were reported for the first two days of the season.

The entire woods district has been blanketed by a thin layer of snow, making conditions ideal for tracking the speedy whitetails.

Merrill Johnson, a member of the hunting party at Max Kellerman's camp south of Alfred, filled his license early Monday morning, bringing down a spike horn, weighing about 140 pounds, at 8:15 o'clock. In the Kellerman camp this season are Mr. and Mrs. Kellerman, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Grzvb of Detroit, and J. T. Sharpensteen of Escanaba.

One of the most satisfactory hunting experiences was enjoyed by Alfred M. Johnson, 1011 Stephenson avenue, while hunting at Roy Goodman's camp at Northland. Within a few minutes after leaving the camp Monday morning, Johnson shot a 140-pound buck and saw three moose. He said he found one moose lying down sleeping, and for an instant thought he was a bear. the huge animal suddenly arose and rushed through the woods, breaking down small trees as he made his escape. The moose are believed to be those that were transplanted from Isle Royale in the Escanaba river tract. Johnson was out hunting with Goodman and John Peterson of Escanaba.

Schnitzler Arrives

Good hunting luck was reported all around the Polack Lake camp yesterday, but only one of the hunters quartered at the CCC camp was successful in filling his license. He was Glen Amos of the U. S. Forest Service. A party of lower Michigan hunters is camping out in tents near the Fourteen Mile bridge at Cherry Hill, not far from the CCC camp.

Joseph Schnitzler, Mt. Pleasant attorney, was stationed in his wheel-chair at the Cherry Hill runway yesterday afternoon, and the hunters in the district joined in conducting a big drive through the woods area in an effort to give the lawyer an opptrtunity for some shooting.

Louis Kositzsky, 943 Stephenson avenue, shot down a 185-pound buck yesterday morning while hunting near Hendricks.

At the West End club hunting camp near Mashek, Joseph Wicksall filled his license Monday, getting a 170-pound buck.

Dell Rhea, manager of the La-Salle hotel in Chicago, joined the Polack Lake camp party yesterday. Rev. Fr. Vogt, Saginaw, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, was expected to arrive late yesterday.

Gets 10-Point Buck

Glynn Havens of Coldwater, Mich., shot a 10-point buck about 9 o'clock Monday morning near Waco tower. This is Mr. Haven's first trip to the Upper Peninsula.

Rev. Constance Southworth of Manistique got a nine-point buck.

Oscar Sundling, John Larson and Eddie Olson of Isabella; Albert Mercier of Nahma and John Behler of Grand Rapids also filled their licenses.

Hunters at Chicago Lake and Petoskey Lodge have been successful but it has not been learned who were the fortunate ones.

Bags a Bear

Roy Smith of Grand Rapids who is hunting at the Simpson-Smith tent camp on Little Brook, north of Ralph, was the proud possessor of the makings of a bear rug before the close of the second day of hunting, according to reports from the camp. Smith who has been coming north to hunt deer for the past 14 years, shot his bear on Tuesday morning.

Using a .35 automatic, Smith hit his prize several times before it was down for good. He is remaining in camp with hopes of adding a deer to his season bag before returning down state. In all the years he has been hunting in the peninsula, he said that it was the first time that he had ever shot at or even seen a bear in the woods. Highly pleased with his success, he declares that his encounter with bruin was the most exciting bit of action he has ever had. The bear was about twenty-five feet away when the final shot took effect as the animal arose on his hind legs facing the hunter.

Lecture on Art Features Dinner Meeting Program

Members of the Escanaba Business and Professional Women's club enjoyed an entertaining and instructive program at their regular meeting Monday evening, which was held in the private dining room of Belle's Coffee shop.

Annette Anderson, Elaine Wickert and Rosemary LaCrosse, known as the Esky Harmonizers, presented two vocal numbers, "Yours and Mine" and "Vienni Vienni." Their accompanist was Elaine Brown.

Mrs. Victor Powers, guest speaker of the evening whose art work was recently shown before the Women's club at Houghton, gave an interesting and comprehensive discussion of "Art and Its Relation to Business." She traced the development of painting and art from the leaders of the modern movement in France several hundred years ago to the present day surrealists. "We should not condemn the painters we do not understand," she said, "although the modern artist sometimes appears to have forgotten the 'idea' in his concern for the technique. A painting represents the artist's individual development. The earlier painters studied the accepted methods of painting in a conservative way. Later they found that this did not satisfy them and they attempted to break away from copying work of their teachers. Today impressionists are considered conservative. The trend now is toward more simple or 'functional' things. This is also true in the fields of music and literature."

Illustrating points brought out in the discussion, Mrs. Powers exhibited several examples of modern art, directing attention to color and form, as well as composition and the other principles, which should be understood in order to appreciate the artists's style and presentation of his subject.

Etchings, engravings, pastels, charcoal and other forms of drawing and painting and their relation to commercial illustration and advertising were discussed by the speaker.

In conclusion she said, "We constantly come in contact with art in its various branches—painting, architecture, designing, decorating; it is a part of our daily living, and to appreciate and enjoy it fully we must attempt to create an understanding of its principles."

Mrs. Vandenberg To Write Column, D. A. R. Magazine

Eleanor Roosevelt writes a daily newspaper column "My Day". Now Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, a prospective First Lady, is going to write all about what fills her days in the official and social life of Washington. Her medium will be the monthly Daughters of the American Revolution magazine.

Frances Parkinson Keyes, editor of the magazine, also wife of a former senator and popular writer of life and people in Washington, is triumphant that "she talked" Mrs. Vandenberg into accepting the assignment.

One thing is certain—the newspaper women in Washington will not resent this activity of Mrs. Vandenberg, as they did what many of them considered the unfair competition of both Eleanor and Alice Roosevelt Longworth. The reason has nothing to do with their various likes and dislikes for the three columnists. They simply consider Ethel Vandenberg "one of them" because she, before her marriage wrote for the Chicago Daily Tribune.

Subscriptions of the magazine should soar in Michigan, as Mrs. Vandenberg is a favorite with the D. A. R., chapters of the state. Always an enthusiastic member, she also has been a gracious hostess to many of them on their various pilgrimages to Washington.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

Going far afield for a picturesque setting for a movie, Warner Bros. this time chose Iraq (which used to be Arabia) as a locale. They placed a British garrison there, had its members surrounded by wild natives, and offered the problem of how the soldiers and their officers and wives were to be saved—if saved they might be.

"Another Dawn," is the name of the picture. It is scheduled to open today at the Delft Theatre. Add to that situation the fact that Kay Francis is the lady most chiefly concerned—and that the two men who love her are Errol Flynn and Ian Hunter — and both have a chance to save her and the garrison — and you have the ingredients of real drama.

It all makes a very thrilling movie, and preview experts have put it up to the top of the list among the action and romance pictures of the year.

Von Zedtwitz Surmounts Problems in Management of Trumps to Make Contract of Seven Spades

Waldemar von Zedtwitz of New York has had his name engraved on every national championship trophy but one. Ever since the early days of contract, "Waldy," as his friends call him, has been recognized as one of the game's greatest playing stars, and also one of its outstanding analytical geniuses.

Today's hand presents an unusual problem in management, in that to fullfill his contract the declarer must shorten his own trump holding, through ruffing, so that he can later discard a loser on dummy's long trump.

While von Zedtwitz, who sat South, had the possibility of a losing heart, he, of course, did not take the club finesse, but went up with the ace, after the jack of clubs was opened.

His analysis of the hand was that one diamond must be ruffed, if that suit broke unfavorably, and it was necessary to establish that suit. It was also essential that trumps be drawn.

If the trumps broke three and two, then by shortening his own trump holding he could still ruff one diamond in dummy, two clubs in his own hand and discard his heart loser while drawing the last adverse trump.

Carrying out his plan, he returned a club and ruffed. He then led a small diamond to the queen, and returned another club, which he ruffed.

He now laid down the king and queen of spades, overtaking the queen with the ace. Both opponents followed suit.

The small diamond was then won with the ace and a low diamond returned to dummy for the ruff. This established the diamond suit.

The last trump was led and the heart ten discarded and all of his cards were good.

Louisiana Wins 69 New Plants By Free Policy

Baton Rouge, La.—In sharp contrast to present-day clashing between government and industry on so many fronts, Louisiana's golden rule policy toward the man who meets the weekly payroll, adopted a year ago this month, has brought more than $36,000,000 in new investment into the state, boosting the industrial roster by 69 new plants.

Such have been the results of the passage of legislation granting a ten-year period of tax exemption to new industry, according to announcement of the state board of commerce and industry. The new law became a constitutional amendment in November, 1936, as a part of an industrial expansion program sponsored by Governor Richard W. Leche, the state's 39-year-old executive, who was lifted from the judicial to the gubernatorial chair.

Result of Referendum

Self-appointed ambassador to industry seeking new locations where the man with the payroll would be guaranteed immunity from political harassments, Governor Leche, acting in accord with the will of the people as expressed in a referendum, also sponsored the establishment of a non-partisan board of commerce and industry to supervise the program.

By frequent platform announcement to industry throughout the country, Governor Leche has made it apparent from the early days of his administration that his political pholosophy is one of fair play to the man with the weekly payroll.

"It is time to lend a helping hand to the man who meets the weekly payroll," Governor Leche declared shortly after assuming the reins of government in Louisiana's towering state capitol here.

No Meddling

"The man with the weekly payroll has been pummelled by legislation and ridden by mounting taxes until he no longer knows where to turn. Louisiana guarantees incoming industry that there will be no political meddling with its affairs. The Louisiana state government stands pledged to protect industry against unreasonable legislation and stifling taxation and to insure its prospering in a normal, healthy fashion."

At the end of the first 12 months since the Leche political philosophy and its concurrent plan became operative, Louisiana business indices, as reported by the bureau of business research of Louisiana State university, shows a healthy upswing. Manufacturing sales for the first nine months of 1937 were up 21.42 per cent over those for the same period of 1936, while department store sales were up 7.78 per cent. Wholesale grocery sales showed a 8.66 per cent increase and postoffice receipts throughout the state increased 9.23 per cent. Electric power consumption jumped 5.4 per cent over the same period in 1936 and the telephone company reported 9.1 per cent more phones in service than for the same period last year.

15,000 Permanent Jobs

Incoming factories and industrial plants are creating employment for 20,000 men in the building trades and permanent employment is resulting for some 15,000, according to a census recently taken by the state board of commerce and industry.

"Results of the first year of the fair play program demonstrate that the prediction I made last year when I said, 'If we take care of industry, then industry will take care of Louisiana,' has come true," Goernor Leche declared in announcing results of the state's "Welcome to Industry" plan.

"The roster of our unemployed is shrinking steadily. The once leisurely state of Louisiana is becoming a bustling hive of industry.

Calls Policy Proved

"To men of vision who are becoming interested in ever increasing numbers in the state's potentialities, we can honestly say—thanks to our well co-ordinated and smoothly functioning program—that only normal hazards of investment are to be encountered. We have proved that the policies of Louisiana's state government toward industry and commerce are strictly those of encouragement and fair dealing."

BOYS RETURN FROM CONFAB

Iron Mountain Chosen As Site for Next Conference

More than 50 Escanaba boys have returned from the three day Older Boys conference, which was held at Menominee over the week end and which broke all previous attendance records.

Iron Mountain was voted the 1938 annual meeting and an Iron Mountain youth, Martin Browning, was named president for the ensuing year.

More than 600 young men, leaders and others—a record attendance—were registered for the two-day session. It was the 24th annual gathering.

Young men from every section of the peninsula attended and hotels and homes were taxed to the utmost to accommodate the record crowd. The housing committee arranged for rooms for 75 boys in the Hotel Marinette when it was learned that the visitors could not all be taken care of in private homes.

Annual Dinner

The annual dinner Saturday evening was the highlight of the meeting. Dr. H. T. Sethney, member of the upper peninsula committee of the Y.M.C.A., under whose auspices the conference was held, presided as toastmaster. The Rev. Fr. James Corcoran, pastor of St. John's church in Menominee, gave the invocation.

The program included greetings, responses, school songs and other musical numbers. Group singing was led by George Campbell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, conference song leader.

Dr. William Geer Spencer, president of Franklin college, Franklin, Ind., was the conference speaker, discussing the subject: "With Vision Clear" Dr. Spencer made three talks during the conference.

C. R. Bearmore, Alliance, Ohio, official A.A.U. photographer, presented motion pictures entitled "One Hour At The Olympics," comprising a record of the United States athletes at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

Robert Shaftsall, of Munising, conference president this year, presided at the opening session Friday. Clifton M. Drury, of Detroit, state Y.M.C.A. secretary, outlined the two-day program.

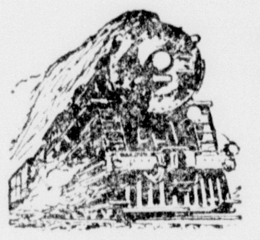
Today's Freight Trains

AMERICA has always been a great user of railroad freight service. Ours has been a major dependence on that service.



Have America's railroads speeded up their freight service to keep abreast of this faster era?

America has the fastest freight trains in the world.

Many of them travel on schedules as rigid as passenger schedules. Many of them are speedier than passenger trains were 15 years ago. Many of them have cut from 5 to 20 to 30 hours off of their 1930 schedules.

Basically, America's freight trains have been speeded up 55% in the past six years. Freight trains with average speeds above 45 miles per hour are becoming the rule.

In 1922 the average freight train carried 676 tons of freight; consisted of 38 cars; maintained an average speed (including all stops) of 11.1 miles per hour, performed in the average hour a service equivalent to carrying 7,479 tons of freight a mile, with payments for loss and damage to freight amounting to $1.11 per car loaded with revenue freight.

Today the average freight train carries 731 tons; averages 46 cars per train; has an average speed of 16.0 miles per hour; had an hour-performance equivalent of 11,718 ton-miles; and claims for loss and damage have dropped to 50 cents per loaded car.

A fast-moving world requires fast and efficient freight service. America's railroads are providing it.

On the Record

By Dorothy Thompson

The renascence of utility investments, which would do much to stimulate employment and help arrest the present downward trend, has been prevented by the deadlock between the industry and the government. From the viewpoint of the industry this deadlock could be broken if the atmosphere were alleviated, if the holding company law were amended to assist utility financing—it must continue of course to protect the public against past abuses — and, above all, if public and private industry can agree on what constitutes fair competition between them, or, better still, if a fair system of co-operation can be devised.

Dorothy Thompson

The atmosphere in which negotiations have been taking place has until now been wretched. The utility interests have become suspicious, perhaps oversuspicious, concerning the just functioning of the government agencies and commissions. The utterances and press releases put out almost daily by these agencies have not helped the atmosphere, nor have the replies of the utility companies addressed to the public against the government. It is extremely difficult to come to any reasonable settlement under such a barrage of propaganda and counter-propaganda.

Yet there isn't much question what the public—in whose interest all this is supposed to be going on—wants. The recent elections cast some light on this. The people have not forgotten the history of some utility companies. They know plenty about past deals between certain industries and holding companies, about stock rigging and stock watering, about the bribing of Legislatures, and their browbeating by powerful lobbies. On the other hand, there is little indication that they want to nationalize power, nor do they wish legitimate investments destroyed. They want just regulation, decent financing, fair play and cheap power. They want private industry and government to reach a settlement, and they know that the prolonged fight is expensive for them—as investors, as consumers, and as taxpayers.

The T. V. A. is one source of serious contention between the government and private industries. And utility investors have a growing conviction that the T. V. A. in the way it is operated demonstrates that the Federal government intends to sell the electricity that it generates at its hydro-electric plants in competition with private utilities regardless of the cost of producing the government power, and regardless of whether the sales price takes into account the elements of cost to a private utility to produce comparable energy.

On this question government spokesmen themselves have often been candid, and if the recent exposee of "The St. Louis Post-Dispatch" tells the truth—and presumably its figures are from the T. V. A. itself—then the T. V. A. as a yardstick is absurd.

In the private water-power companies 92½ per cent of the total cost represents interest and depreciation on investment. Only 7½ per cent represents operation and maintenance. Whittle it down as one might by revised bases of capital valuation, the investment factor will remain enormous. The capital required for hydro-electric development is ten or twelve times as great for the same annual gross earnings as for the average industry.

But the T. V. A. ignores these largest factors. In its own financial statements not one cent is charged out for interest and depreciation, and the rate allowed for taxes is only a third of the average paid by private industries. Even if these factors were to be taken into account, the yardstick would still be unrevealing, because only a small part of the total T. V. A. costs are allocated to electric power, and the rest to navigation and flood control, while private hydro-electric companies, like the Keokuk and Conowingo Dams must pay the entire cost of hydro-electric development, no matter how much it may benefit navigation or flood control.

I have seen convincing figures from government sources to prove that whereas the T. V. A. in the fiscal year 1937 sold power for 2.23 mills per kilowatt-hour, it actually cost the taxpayer 4.29 mills to produce, and the utility 6.85 mills—this, when the plants are fully loaded. The true cost for 1937 is estimated at 7.12 mills. And this is when the rate of interest and depreciation recently approved by the President for Federal projects is applied only to the obviously inadequate amounts allocated for power.

If the figures are correct, then T. V. A. power, with inadequate allowance for power cost, and with taxes only one-third of what private utilities have to pay, is costing from two to three times (depending on the plant load) what it is selling for.

And who is getting this cheap power paid for by the taxpayer? The people? The small consumers? Hardly.

"The Post-Dispatch" data show that 89 per cent of the beneficiaries of the taxpayers' generosity are large industries, or, as they have been called, economic royalists, chiefly the Aluminum Company of America and the Monsanto Chemical Company. "The Post-Dispatch" says that the great bulk of the power produced is sold to public utility companies and industrial corporations, with no control whatsoever over resale rates. If these facts are true, there are abuses here to excite the envy of Mr. Insull.

Even if there were no conception of the yardstick in the T. V. A. a publicly owned corporation is under as great obligations to amortize its debts, meet its interest and pay its way as a privately owned industry. The Soviet government has had some experience with government operation, and it has ceased commingling the profits and losses of its various trusts in a common budget deficit, or letting the prosperous vodka industry pay the debts of other less fortunate enterprises. It makes its separate industries each pay its own way not only in operating but in money costs. Or tries to.

CHAPTER XXIV

Alan's apartment was locked. Shades were drawn. A prolonged pounding by Patty, after continuous ringing of the bell, brought no response.

She went to the apartment next door and pressed the bell. An elderly man answered the door. No, he didn't know the occupant on the other side. He had often planned to call on a fellow artist. And, now, the young man was gone. He had seen him leaving this afternoon in a cab. He had carried several large suitcases with him.

Patty turned away in panic. Alan had gone away from this place. It would be like looking for a needle in a haystack, sure enough, trying to find an unknown young man in a large city.

"Thank heaven for Ardath!" Patty thought, wildly. Adding mentally: "And don't you dare give me any trouble, Ardath, or I'll tear you apart with my hands. You've already caused too much trouble. It's you who should be investigated. But women like you get by with anything."

Having indulged herself by this mental berating of the despised Ardath, Patty swung into Madison avenue and headed for the exclusive shop where Ardath modeled.

"What do you want?" Ardath began belligerently. "I'm pretty busy if you don't mind—"

"I do mind," Patty answered. "Take me to some private place where we can talk."

"What if I dont' care to talk with you?"

"Maybe you'd rather talk with the police."

Ardath shrugged. But she led the way to a small fitting room and closed the door.

Patty went directly to the point. "Ardath, Jill is in trouble. The police think she had something to do with the death of her father, who died, they say, at 6 o'clock. Jill wasn't at home then. She had just left you at the door of Alan's apartment."

"So, she told you that?" Ardath was smiling queerly. "I guess she's pretty scared. Women who are scared will say most anything."

"Tell the truth," Patty spoke, shortly.

"Why didn't you go to Alan Jeffry?" Ardath asked.

"I did. He wasn't at home. The people next door saw him leave this afternoon with his suitcases."

Patty immediately regretted the words. She had seen a look in Ardath's eyes that she recognized. The look of the rat slipping between the cat's paws and into its own dark hole.

"Pretty dumb of me," Patty groaned to herself.

"Gone away, has he?" Ardath mused. "Well, even if he were here, and even if I were at his place—which, remember, I'm not admitting—it wouldn't help you any. Jill Wentworth is not telling the truth. I didn't see her that morning around 6 o'clock. You can tell her for me that she'll have to think up another alibi."

"Why you—you terrible, unconscionable liar—you."

"Haul out all the compliments you happen to have with you," Ardath replied calmly. "I guess I can take them. I always knew you didn't like me, Patty."

"I don't like you," Patty spoke bluntly. "But my feelings toward you haven't anything to do with this. You were at Alan's because Jill said you were. And I'll find Alan, and he'll say so. If you think he'd shield you when Jill's in danger, you are not as smart as I think you are. You should know better than anyone that he loves Jill."

Ardath did know better than anyone. Hate was unveiled in her eyes.

"I suppose you think all this sweet conversation is helping your friend. Well, it isn't. She can look to her smart lawyers. And if they put me on the stand, I'll swear she is crazy. As for Alan, don't you think if he were going to do anything for her, he'd have called her before this?"

Patty drew a deep breath, and began putting on her gloves.

"There are ways to make people talk," she said slowly. "And perjury is a punishable crime. Don't forget that when you're summoned."

"Nobody can prove I was there, because I wasn't," Ardath persisted. "And if Alan says so, I'll say he is no gentleman and is only trying to save Jill from prison. I guess with all her looks and money, she'll get by with a few years in prison. When she comes out, she won't be so highhat, I imagine.

There was no help here. Patty admitted to herself that Ardath had the upper hand. There were times when Ardath could look so sweet and appealing. She could picture Ardath with that innocent look she had at times, looking up at a jury through a mist of tears, swearing she was being made a victim to save Jill.

"I don't believe you would tell the truth even to save Jill's life," Patty cried out suddenly.

"Let's hope it won't come to that," Ardath smiled, carefully using her compact. "After all, Patty, you couldn't expect me to tell the world I was at Alan's just to clear Jill Wentworth's skirts. What kind of girl do you think I am, anyway?"

"I don't have to puzzle about it. I know," Patty replied grimly.

There was nothing else to do. No one else who could help. In a flash it came to her. There was the old woman with the red scarf Jill had given her.

She must find her. Her testimony and the scarf would clear Jill.

But nobody on 67th street had seen an old beggar woman wearing a red scarf.

"Beggars don't come on this street," one irate woman told Patty. "Some of us may be poor, but we're all respectable, and able to take care of ourselves. Who ever heard of such a story? An old lady, begging at that time of morning."

Patty turned away. Well, of course Jill hadn't said the old lady was a beggar. But she had kept the money Jill had given her which amounted to the same thing. And these cold mornings, she would be sure to wear that red woolen scarf. She had covered every place in the block. No, there was the apartment next door to Alan's, occupied by an elderly artist. She would go back to him, and tell her story once more. If he couldn't help, she would ask the police to keep a lookout for an old woman wearing a red scarf. Beyond that—but Patty wouldn't think beyond that.

Once more, Patty rang the bell of the apartment that adjoined Alan's.

And again the friendly face of the elderly man appeared.

"Still looking for the young man?" he queried, before Patty could speak. "I'm afraid I've no news. I haven't seen him since he left today. And nobody has come to his apartment."

"No," Patty answered. "I'm not looking for him now. I'm trying to find an old woman—"

"An old woman!" The elderly man smiled. "So it's an old woman instead of a young man you want to find?"

Patty smiled wanly back at him. Of course, she did sound crazy. But somehow she must convince him she was not.

"Someone—a girl friend of mine is in great trouble," Patty said. "This young man and an old woman who was begging in front the day my friend came here are the only two people who could help her."

"We have no beggars," the man began stiffly.

"I've heard that before," Patty answered. "Just the same there was an old woman in front of this building, and my friend gave her some money and a red woolen scarf—"

"A red scarf!" the man exclaimed. "Oh, of course. Will you come in?"

Patty walked in. She had a nervous feeling that maybe she shouldn't be following him. His eyes had gleamed so queerly at the mention of the red scarf.

They were walking down a hall. And now the man was throwing a door wide.

Seated near a glowing fire, knitting briskly, was an ancient-looking old woman. About her shoulders was a cheery red scarf.

"Nanna," began the man sternly, "did you take some money from a young woman when you went out for a breath of air early yesterday morning? And where did you get the scarf?"

The old woman's bright eyes twinkled. "Did she repent her bargain and want the pretty scarf back? Or maybe she didn't know it was a beeg bill she was giving me?"

The man shook his head in mock disapproval. "You'd never know that you were the mother of a respectable painter. Shameless. Taking money. No wonder this young lady was out searching for a beggar."

He turned to Patty: "She gets up every morning at 6 and goes out for a brief while. She had the habit back in France, and I haven't been able to break her of it, though the winter mornings here and in the south of France are very different."

"She looked at her watch and said, "It's seex o'clock.'" the old woman broke in merrily. "And I said, 'You don't have to tell me the time. I know by the sun.' So pretty she was. So ashamed she would have been, if I geeve the money back."

Patty sat down weakly. "Please excuse me. But I feel a little faint. After I recover a bit, I want you and your son to go with me to the police. The girl who gave you the red scarf is in trouble. The police claim she was somewhere else at 6 yesterday morning."

"They do, do they?" began the old woman. "Those police! Well, I guess this will prove something. Are those the girl's—what do you say in your Engleesh—ineetials?"

She took the red scarf from her shoulders and handed it to Patty. Inside were the letters, embroidered on a silk marking band, "J. W."

TWO INJURED IN HUNTING MISHAP

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox Shot by Charles Redeker

The first casualties of the 1937 deer hunting season in Schoolcraft county occurred Monday afternoon near Boot Lake, 27 miles north of Manistique, when Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox, of Manistique, were injured by buckshot fired by Charles Redeker, also of Manistique, from an automatic shotgun. Redeker reported he shot Mr. and Mrs. Fox when he had mistaken them in the brush for a deer he had seen a few minutes previous to the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Redeker were hunting together near Boot Lake, where Mr. and Mrs. Fox operate a resort. About 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Redeker sighted a buck which disappeared into the brush. The four members of the party began a search for the animal. Mr. and Mrs. Fox shot and killed a rabbit, and Mrs. Fox picked the rabbit up and was carrying it with her.

Redeker saw the rabbit fur and mistook it for the tail of a deer, he reported. The white rabbit fur and the brown clothing worn by Mrs. Fox gave the appearance of a deer through the brush, Redeker said, and believing he could see the antlers of a buck, Redeker aimed his automatic shotgun and fired twice through the brush.

A woman's scream followed the shooting, and Redeker hurried through the brush to find Mr. Fox holding Mrs. Fox. Both had been struck by buckshot pellets from Redeker's gun.

Mrs. Fox was hit in the right leg and right side of the abdomen and her husband was shot in the left hip and left hand. Redeker carried Mrs. Fox three quarters of a mile to the Fox's car, and Mr. Fox walked the distance. Redeker took the injured couple to the Shaw hospital in Manistique, and then reported the accident to Sheriff William Laux.

The condition of both Mr. and Mrs. Fox was reported as satisfactory yesterday, and their recovery is expected. Mrs. Fox is the more seriously injured.

Rev. J. O. Nelson To Leave Dec. 1 For Birmingham

Rev. J. O. Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist church here for the past two years, has accepted a call to be pastor of the First Baptist church at Birmingham, Michigan, and will leave Manistique on December 1.

A committee from the congregation of the local church has been named to name a successor to Rev. Nelson here, but no appointment has yet been made.

A fine speaker possessing a good personality, Rev. Nelson has made hundreds of friends in Manistique, not only among members of his own congregation but in the community at large as well. The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Nelson regret that they will leave this community, but are happy in the knowledge that Rev. Nelson's appointment to a larger church in Birmingham means a highly deserved promotion for the local minister.

Ian Winn of Battle Creek is visiting here at the home of his mother, Mrs. A. H. Winn, 212 Maple Avenue.

Hunters Pleased As Weather Stiffens

Deer hunters yesterday were delighted with a sudden stiffening in weather conditions, and a light fall of snow which improved tracking. Colder weather was particularly welcome because it means the venison bagged for fortunate hunters will keep fresh.

Among the hunters who filled their licenses Monday, the first day of the season, were L. R. Thornton, South Second street, who got a ten-point buck near Steuben at 8 a. m.; Harold Plichta, local merchant, who killed an 8-point, 160 pound buck near M-94, also about eight o'clock; Jim Baker, high school student, who bagged a nice buck while en route from his home in Engadine to the Manistique high school; and Frank Vyard, 68 year old veteran, who filled his license near Hiawatha about two o'clock Monday afternoon.

Manistique Debate Team Will Travel To Iron Mountain

The Manistique high school affirmative debate team, which defeated Felch here last week, will travel to Iron Mountain Friday to meet the Iron Mountain negative trio in the second preliminary debate of the season.

Other debates on the preliminary schedule for Manistique will be with the Soo, probably on Dec. 17, when the local negative team meets the Soo affirmative here; and January 14 at Escanaba, when the local negative team meets the Escanaba affirmative team.

DEBATE FELCH FRIDAY NIGHT

Gladstone Affirmatives Travel for Second Argument

Gladstone high school debaters will participate in their second argument of the preliminary series Friday evening when the affirmative trio travels away from home to compete against Felch.

Handling the negative side of the question regarding adoption by the several states of a unicameral system of legislation the local squad defeated Sault Ste. Marie in the opening debate here Nov. 5.

Coach Raymond Nadeau has chosen Agnes Dahlbeck, Dean Slye and Richard Johnston to form the trio to represent Gladstone high. They will speak in the order named. This is the same trio as participated in the opening argument.

Prof. Forest Roberts, Northern State Teachers college, Marquette, will serve as lone critic judge.

Gladstone debaters will go to Trenary tonight to participate in a practice argument. Two other practice debates have been arranged, one with Manistique between second teams of the two schools on Dec. 2, the other a varsity practice against Mellon, Wis., here on Dec. 11.

TALK PROVES INTERESTING

Speaker Shows Pictures, Describes Olympic Games

Highly interesting was the illustrated lecture presented here Monday evening at Gladstone high school by E. D. Mitchell, associate professor of physical education and director of intramural sports at the University of Michigan.

Prof. Mitchell came to Gladstone under the auspices of the Child's Welfare club which each year brings a number of able speakers to this city.

"The 1936 Olympic Games" was the title of Prof. Mitchell's address. The speaker attended the games and pictures shown were taken by him on the trip.

Slides were projected on a screen showing various Olympic events and also some interesting scenes taken in a number of German cities visited. As each was projected it was ably described by the speaker.

Following the slides, Prof. Mitchell showed several rolls of talking pictures taken of the Olympics. It was especially thrilling to watch the breaking out of the American flag signifying the winning of some event by an athlete from the United States.

2 WAY RELIEF FOR THE MISERY OF COLDS

Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.
If throat is sore from the cold, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.
All it usually costs to relieve the misery of a cold today — is 3¢ to 5¢ — relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.
Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on — with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly.
The Bayer method of relieving colds is the way many doctors approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief — then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—An unusually erratic stock market today jumped through a series of rallies and declines, and finished on a mild recovery move engineered by the major steels.

Early losses of 1 to more than 3 points were reduced or replaced with moderate gains in many cases at the close, but at that numerous issues were sufficiently under water to pull the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down .4 of a point to 46.9.

After a rapid slide at the start, dealings turned quiet and continued so throughout the remainder of the session. Transfers totalled 1,269,370 shares compared with 1,450,210 yesterday.

Last-minute support for the steel group was attributed to the belief new orders now coming into the plants may soon reverse the current downward slant in this industry . The sharp drop in this week's mill operations, however, kept shares in this category well on the downside the greater part of the session.

The further retreat of the list, as a whole, was in the face of a sizeable flow of special and year-end dividends from corporations wishing to avoid the federal tax on undistributed profits.

Trade news was far from bright and further recessions in many lines were expected over the remainder of the year.

Overnight study of the presidents' message brought mixed opinions in the financial sector. While some pointed to the apparently conciliatory aspect of the document, others expressed the view it still left business out on a limb so far as immediate aid was concerned.

Fears also were advanced that the special congressional session may battle to a draw on disputed measures having to do with the administration's program and thus create fresh apprehension in business circles.

There were wide swings among active as well as inactive shares. U. S. Steel was low at 54 5-8, high at 57 5-8 and ended at 57½ for a net gain of ½. Others to emerge on top for as much as a point or so were American Telephone at 150¾, Bethlehem 52 7-8, Douglas Aircraft 35, Goodyear 22, Westinghouse 100½, and Kennecott 34½.

Du Pont dropped 4¾ at 114, and J. I. Case yielded 3 at 95.

New labor difficulties and slackening production kept the motors in leash. Chrysler was down 1¼ at 65 and General Motors ½ lower at 37 5-8.

Late Spurt Cuts Losses On Curb

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—A late buying spurt tended to cut stock losses in the curb market today. Declines ranged from fractions to around a point. Some higher priced shares slumped as much as 4.

Aluminum Co. dropped 4¾ to 85½ and Sherwin Williams was off 4 to 84. Losing 2 to 3 were Montgomery Ward "A" at 129, Newmont Mining 65, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass at 85.

Fractionally lower were American Gas & Electric at 26¾, American Light & Traction 14, Cord Corp. 2¼, Gulf Oil 38¼, International Petroleum 30, American Cyanamid "B" 24 1-8, United Light & Power "A" 4, St. Regis Paper 4 and McWilliams Dredging at 13¼.

Transactions totaled 220,000 shares compared with 257,000 Monday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 16—Sudden upturns in Chicago wheat values took place at the last today after the market earlier had nervously shifted its trend several times.

Price jumps at Buenos Aires, where frost damage fears were again prevalent, acted as a stimulus to late rallies of wheat prices here. Forecasts pointed to likelihood of frost tonight in southwest areas of Buenos Aires province, an important wheat-growing section of Argentina.

Moreover, harvest weather in northern Argentina was reported to be adverse, with rains impeding field operations and threatening to reduce the quality of wheat.

Chicago wheat futures closed 1-8 to 7-8 above yesterday's finish, December 89 7-8 to 90, May 90½ to 90 5-8, July 84 3-8 to 84½, corn ¼ to 5-8 up, December 53 7-8 to 54, May 57 to 57 1-8, oats 1-8 to ¼ advanced, rye unchanged to 1¼ cents bulge, and provisions varying from 20 cents setback to a gain of 2 cents.

Corn, oats and rye rallied with wheat, but not until corn had touched new low price records.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The corporate bond market went limp today as prices ended fractions to around a point lower in quiet dealings, but federal loans advanced along a wide front.

The U. S. governments ranged 9-32 of a point higher to 2-32 of a point lower.

Rail liens were under pressure although late buying tended to shrink losses.

Despite increased flow of year-end dividends, most corporates faltered.

The Associated Press average for 20 rails dropped .7 of a point to 74.1, while ten utilities dipped .3 of a point to 98.2 and ten industrials declined .2 of a point to 93.3.

Down a point or more were Rock Island 4s at 19, International Paper 5s at 93, Pennsylvania General 4½s at 103, Southern Pacific 4½s at 63¾ and Utilities Power & Light 5s at 51½. Texas Corp. 3½s, Western Union 5s and New York Central 5s eased fractions.

Turnover for all bonds totaled $7,243,275, face value, compared with $7,253,575 Monday.

Pittsburgh Too Good; Loses All Opposition

BY PAUL MICKELSON

New York, Nov. 16. (AP)—If the University of Pittsburgh athletic bosses were as smart as they look, they'd appoint a vigilante committee of the toughest professors in the school to chase good football players right out of the city limits for the next two or three years.

The candid truth is that Pittsburgh's greatest need is a football team that resembles the modern editions produced by the University of Chicago—a team that consistently gets its ears pinned back. If something almost as drastic as that doesn't happen soon, the Pitt bosses are going to be sorry.

Every once in a long time, some athlete or team comes along to destroy competition. Such is the case of Coach Jock Sutherland's Panthers. They're too good, too tough, year after year and their traditional opponents, sick and fed up with getting licked, are dropping out like flies at a bartenders' picnic.

Since the Sutherland coaching regime began 13 seasons ago, the Panthers have won 101 games with the probability the full total will be hiked to 103 with victories over Penn State and Duke in the remaining games of the current schedule.

Over that period, Pitt has lost some of its greatest attractions. Notre Dame, Army, Navy, Ohio State, Northwestern, Minnesota and Pennsylvania won't play them any more, although a few so-called "sucker teams" of national renown have replaced them on the schedule. Nebraska, winner of but one game in 12, probably will drop out the first chance it gets even if it does mean loss of its greatest gate.

It's tiresome and sickening trying to beat that outfit year after year—they're too good," said a Nebraska official who asked that his name be withheld for obvious reasons. "After all, football teams are like kids on the street. They like to get on top once in awhile."

Minnesota and Notre Dame did better against the Panthers than any other teams but ceased pigskin unpleasantries for various reasons. Minnesota played and won two and had enough. The reason Notre Dame broke off is because of Coach Elmer Layden, a sensitive fellow who can't forget a slight.

When Elmer coached Duquesne, bitter city rival of the Panthers, he figured Sutherland slighted him by refusing to shake hands after a game. Since that time he has been "off" the Panthers. Sutherland did not mean to slight Layden—the truth was he was going over to exchange pleasantries with Layden after the game when he became engrossed with something else and forgot what he started out to do. Anyway, Notre Dame is off Pitt's schedule from now on.

After Pitt's 26-0 humiliation of Notre Dame last fall, Layden was the sorriest looking coach I ever saw. He was a human volcano, fuming with emotions and spouting to himself.

Somehow, Dr. Sutherland and the rest of the Pitt athletic bosses are believed to realize the "situation" although they won't talk about it. During my trip to Pitt last week, a distinct lack of enthusiasm for a Rose Bowl invitation seemed apparent. It wouldn't surprise this corner a pit if Pitt turned down an invitation to the Rose Bowl even if it gets one.

Only Col. Jake Ruppert's New York Yankees of baseball fortune can get away with a "too good" team year after year, and that's because the other teams are stuck in the American league and can't get over to the National. But even Jake's boys have lean years. They're not like Pitt's Panthers.

One Point Wins Bring Memories To Wolve Alumni

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16—(Special)—Michigan for the first time since 1933 has won three straight Conference football games, but never in history have three such wins come by such narrow margins.

Michigan in three games won

A WISE CRACKER

"Michigan gridders have the old 7 to 6 spirit," wrote one Michigan student editor after the Wolverines' close victories.

from Iowa and Illinois, 7 to 6, and from Chicago, 13 to 12. The Illinois game, incidentally, marked the fifth straight year that games between the two teams have been decided by a single place kick.

In 1926 the Wolverine team which included two members of the present coaching staff, Bennie Oosterbaan and Wallie Weber, eked out two one-point victories to end its season. The first was the famous 17-16 win from Ohio State and the second a 7-6 win from Minnesota, second meeting of the teams that year. In 1911, while Michigan was not a member of the Western Conference, the Wolverines defeated Vanderbilt 9-8, tied Syracuse 6-6, lost to Cornell, 6-0, defeated Pennsylvania 11-9 and tied Nebraska 6-6.

4 LETTERMEN ARE RETURNING

Official Drills Will Be Held at Senior High Gym at 4 O'clock

The first official basketball practice of the season for Escanaba high school athletes has been called by Coach Carl Nordberg for this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the senior high school. Conditioning exercises have been held Monday and yesterday for those who cared to report but the boys will get down to real business this evening.

When Nordberg's material lines up, he expects to find four lettermen and several others who saw action last year back in the fold to form a nucleus for this year's team. Returning lettermen are Captain Stanton Abrahamson, Kenneth Frederickson, Iver Olson and Billy Peterson. Others who saw service last year and who are expected to make heavy bids for positions on the team this year are Eis, Ouimette, Hanson, Swanson, Hurley, Thompson and Sivertsen.

Nordberg said last night that he expects between 50 and 80 boys to report for work but that he would cut that squad to working size within a short time. Those not surviving the first cut will be carried by Coach George Ruwitch, who again this year will coach the reserves.

The locals will have a heavy 14-game schedule this year, opening on the local court in three weeks, entertaining Al Kircher's Graveraet high school cagers of Marquette on December 3.

The full schedule will be as follows:

Dec. 3—Marquette, here.
Dec. 7—Kingsford, here.
Dec. 10—At Iron Mountain.

Bark River Wins From Harris Five

Bark River, Nov. 16—The Bark River high school basketball team defeated the Harris reserve cagers here tonight in the opening game of the season by a score of 20 to 14. The locals took a two point lead in the opening period that was never relinquished. Particularly pleasing to the locals was the fact that while only ninth and tenth graders are on the home team, the visiting squad is made of a number of upper classmen.

Dope Says Pitt Won't Get Bid To Rose Bowl

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 16 (AP)—With only 45 shopping days until New Year's the most frequent guess today is that Pittsburgh—the nation's top-ranking football team—will not be invited to defend its Rose Bowl title January 1.

The annual guessing bee—it usually starts about this time—won't have even a tinge of authority until after Saturday's game between Rose Bowl-bound California and Stanford. Then the Pacific Coast Conference will pick its candidate and the chosen school will select an opponent.

But unofficial opinion out here is that the nod will not go to undefeated but tied Pittsburgh, which beat Washington in the Tournament of Roses classic last New Year's Day.

Apparently the west once more is pursuing those most elusive candidates—members of conferences which scorn post seasonal football.

Of these, undefeated but tied Yale—which still must beat Harvard—is the standout, now that Dartmouth has declined to accept an invitation if it were tendered, and of course it won't be.

This wouldn't be the first time the west has tried to crack the Big Three agreement against post season football. It's a matter of record that Princeton was sought more than once in recent years.

And time and again the west has tried to induce the Big Ten to break down its post season ban. This season, with the prospect of success better than ever before, the Western Conference is without a standout.

The Big Three was represented in 1920 by Harvard, which scored a 7 to 6 victory over Oregon. The Big Ten sent a guest in 1921 when California walked off with a 28 to 0 victory over Ohio State, but massed efforts to break down the barriers in these two conferences in recent years have been in vain.

Besides the doubtful Pitt choice, the west still has on the available list that undefeated frequent visitor—Alabama; along with such undefeated elevens as Holy Cross, Villanova and Fordham, the latter with its slogan: "From Rose Hill to Rose Bowl."

Although the unofficial selection committee of fans and sports scribes usually abides by the teams' comparative records, the choice frequently has been a team whose record has been marred by defeat.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

Almost stark silence has followed our recent column in which we extended Escanaba's bid for a claim to the Upper Peninsula mythical championship . . . sport writers, especially so in the Ironwood district, have failed to take issue with us and it looks like the Eskymo followers will be satisfied with their championship because of silence . . . only Hap Willoughby of the Iron Mountain News has thus far made any remarks on Escanaba's claim since the season was finished and even he makes no attempt to discredit it . . . after repeating our column, Willoughby concludes with "That case is pretty convincingly put . . . but, since Ironwood was not beaten or tied by a Michigan opponent, the best way to shape the conclusion is that Escanaba and Ironwood are co-champions with the Eskymos generally regarded as the stronger of the two elevens" . . . perhaps we should be satisfied with that favorable admission . . . but we were just wondering, on the basis of that argument, Hibbing, Minnesota, which defeated Ironwood, also should share the Upper Peninsula title inasmuch as they were undefeated and untied by a Michigan opponent.

—O—

And, while we are on the subject of Willoughby, another item of his is of interest to our readers . . . Hap points out that the Iron Mountain-Kingsford game on Armistice Day topped the gross gate for the Escanaba-Gladstone game by $54.75 even though it was the first Armistice Day game of the two Range teams . . . it sounds quite remarkable until one considers the factors involved . . . although not on Armistice Day, the Iron Mountain-Kingsford game has been an annual affair for many years and has a much greater rivalry than the Escanaba-Gladstone affair because the two schools are of a more uniform size and more closely situated . . . therefore, the game can not be considered a "first nighter" . . . then too, the IM-K game draws from four closely connected towns, Iron Mountain, Kingsford, Norway and Vulcan, all of which are good football towns . . . in the local instance, it must be admitted that Gladstone is a poor football town . . . we wonder if just a few of those people, perhaps $54.75 worth, didn't come to the IM-K game to see Herber and Hutson of the Packers perform . . . and we were just wondering, too, if that isn't somewhat of a poor precedent to set . . . very soon the fans will be going to see the game for the visiting attraction instead of the game . . . just like at the Relay Carnival in Escanaba.

—O—

And now, to make this a full fledged Willoughby column (Hap, we'll send you our weekly check for doing our work), we quote Hap anent the local baseball situation:

Receipt of Escanaba's delayed financial report reveals that every club in the Northern Wisconsin Michigan Baseball league made money last summer . . . Attendance at Escanaba was believed the smallest in the league and its report was expected to show a loss . . . But the Eskymo club paid a $15.21 obligation of the previous year, cleaned up all its current bills, purchased a set of uniforms for next season and closed the books with a net balance of $154.07 in the bank . . . That fine showing was made possible because the team received $499 in donations and did not pay its players . . . But it was a commendable record nevertheless . . . And it assures that the team will be back next spring financially sound and well equipped.

LURES OFFERED STAR FRESHMAN

Michigan Daily Charges Scholarship Offered Harmon at Tulane

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—The University of Michigan's bubbling pot of athletic troubles, further heated by charges that an attempt had been made to lure away a star freshman football player, held the center of campus interest here tonight despite the faculty's calm refusal to get excited.

To the announcement that the athletic board of control was investigating alleged subsidizing of freshmen athletes and the action of alumni groups in demanding that Coach Harry G. Kipke be given "full control" of the football program, the Michigan Daily, student newspaper, today added the charge in a copyright article that Tom Harmon, frosh star from Gary, Ind., had been tendered an offer from Bill Bevan, assistant coach at Tulane university.

The paper printed what it claimed to be a photostatic copy of a telegram sent from Athens, Ga., to Harmon. The message said: "Your help at Simon pure school will always be subject to criticism. Our offer still stands. You can still enter this semester."

At New Orleans, Bevan answered questions on the telegram with this statement:

"We tried to get the boy this past summer and we had heard that he planned to transfer of his own volition to another school. We naturally would have liked to have him and since his brother is in school here I thought he might want to transfer to Tulane if he were leaving Michigan."

Bevan said in regard to the "offer": "The only offer ever made to him was that of an athletic scholarship which is perfectly legal in the southeastern conference."

Ralph W. Aigler, chairman of the board of control conducting the subsidizing investigation, said he had "no comment" and added he did not know when an announcement would be made of the board's findings. Fielding H. Yost, athletic director, was silent on the charges.

The student newspaper charged the offer was a direct result of the board's investigation, asserting that the inquiry was "forced" with the intention of removing Kipke as head football coach.

Harmon is a halfback on the frosh squad and is one of several promising varsity prospects who have flatly denied rumors of their being subsidized.

It is claimed that 16 colleges sought Harmon before he came to Michigan. The Daily said he had taken no action on the Tulane "offer" and intended to remain at Michigan. His former high school coach, Douglas Kerr, is a Michigan graduate.

BARAGA CAGERS START PRACTICE

Work Under Rushton in Preparation for St. Joseph Tilt

Marquette, Nov. 16—Under the guidance of a new coach, Carroll C. Rushton, the Baraga Parochial high school basketball candidates are working hard in the Sidney Adams gymnasium, preparing for the season's opener against the alumni on Friday night, November 26.

Four lettermen are included in the squad being drilled by Rushton, formerly of Graveraet high school. They are Edward Thornton, Robert Tonella, Joseph Gereau and John Dagenais. A fifth, Edward Trombley, is ill at present, but probably will join the team later.

Baraga's supporters are expecting a strong squad this season, Herbert Schmeltzer, student manager, says, and spirit at early practices tends to bear him out. In addition to the above mentioned letter winners, Jack Cardoni, Donald Schmeltzer, Robert Derleth and Paul Crowley are listed as promising prospects.

Derleth, particularly, will be a valuable man if he can perform on the court as well as he did on the gridiron this fall. Although he had little or no coaching, Derleth, a sophomore, gave better exhibitions of kicking, passing, running and tackling than many players on regular high school teams.

Lost Four Regulars

Four 1936-37 regulars are lost by graduation, including Frederick Haley, George Cardoni, Ben Beauchaine and Lawrence Murray.

Champ Lou Ambers Wins In St. Louis

St. Louis, Nov. 16 (AP)—Lou Ambers, world's lightweight boxing champion, won a 10-round decision over Charley Burns of Johnstown, Pa., in a hard fought exhibition match tonight.

The champion carried the fight most of the way but found Burns' long right bothersome. Ambers' lightning fast left found its mark often, especially in close fighting, and Burns' face was bloody from the sixth round on. Ambers weighed 136¾ and Burns 139½.

Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, world's bantamweight titleholder, gained a technical knockout over Irish Jackie Carter of Pittsburgh in the semi-windup. Carter failed to come out for the fifth round in their scheduled 10-rounder. Jeffra weighed 122 and Carter 126.

Michigan Skating Tourneys Booked

Detroit, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Michigan Skating association tonight awarded the state outdoor championships to Alpena, where they will be held January 15 and 16. The meet was held at Alpena last year.

The national outdoor champions will be held at Petoskey for the third consecutive year. The dates are February 5 and 6.

A team meet with the Ohio Skating association, which was held at Cleveland in 1937, will be held at Detroit's Belle Isle either February 19 and 20 or February 26 and 27.

The association was informed that Escanaba is planning a winter carnival and the upper peninsula champions for mid-January.

BOXING

VETERAN FLOORED

Coral Gables, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP)—Ben Brown, young Atlanta middleweight, floored Paul Pirrone, Cleveland veteran, six times in the first round tonight and went on to knock him out in the second. Brown weighed 160; Pirrone 164.

BESSEMER MAN ELECTED

Moorhead, Minn., Nov. 16 (AP)—John Ielmini of Bessemer, Mich., a guard, tonight was elected co-captain of the Moorhead State Teachers college football team for next season. Vernon Zehren of Breckinridge, Minn., is the other leader.

Chicago (AP) — Chicago's best freshman team in several years failed to make much impression on the varsity today with the use of Illinois plays. Coach Clark Shaughnessy said he planned to stick with his all-junior backfield of quarterback Lew Hamity, halfbacks Sollie Sherman and Ed Valorz and fullback Mort Goodstein, against the Illini Saturday.

Legendary Foes Meet In Finales Saturday

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

Intercollegiate football's stirring 1937 campaign of upsets comes to a roaring close on most fronts on Saturday, with ancient and legendary foes practically dying for their dear old alma maters.

Battles between Yale and Harvard, California and Stanford, Ohia State and Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, Indiana and Purdue, Colgate and Syracuse and Lafayette and Lehigh, for examples, mean more to the combatants and their rooters than any other.

It is solace for wet-eyed seniors making their last stand, and you must have played the game to know how badly a young man feels once he realizes that his college football career has come to an end.

Harvard takes the field against Yale at Cambridge in what still is the pitra in pigskin parades with the finest chance of winning since the bottom fell out of the Crimson moleskin market in 1934.

Although it will be the last game of football for Clinton Edward Frank and Dave Colwell, who have earned places as Blue immortals, I have an idea that Harvard will prevail behind the savage line thrusts of Vernon Struck.

California-Stanford is Prettiest Game

California should further make up for the three-fall famine brought about by Stanford's vowing sophomores of 1933, but what it seemed would be a Bear romp several weeks ago now appears to be one of the bitterest scraps of the autumn.

Following a poor start, the Cardinals developed into a band of opportunists, and their triumphs over Washington and Southern California and rout of Washington State has the Indians talking Rose Bowl again.

For color and beauty, no other game quite compares with a California-Stanford meeting.

Ohio State once more should repel Michigan, but the Wolverines may have sufficient stuff to force blustery Francis Schmidt to close the gates of mercy, which would be a pleasant change at Ann Arbor.

Minnesota figures to repulse Wisconsin, but not by the 24-point margin of 1936.

Indiana, with Corby Davis and tough under Bo McMillin in November gets the nod over Purdue.

If Syracuse pastes Colgate for the first time since 1927, Orangemen will just about wreck Syracuse, but I rather suspect that the city will be spared.

Little, Madigan Also Out to Save Seasons

Against Lehigh, Hooks Mylin of Lafayette should finish what perhaps is the finest coaching job of the year.

Moving to a school that had been in the depths for five years and which lost eight out of nine games in 1936, Mylin is steaming in unbeaten and untied.

Lou Little of Columbia and Slip Madigan of Saint Mary's are two more coaches out to save their seasons.

As skillful as they are, I doubt that either will succeed, however, for the Lion tackles a splendid Dartmouth squad and the Gaels cross the continent to meet Fordham, one of the four strongest clubs in the land.

Penn State and North Carolina State should give Pitt and Duke just the kind of workouts they require before the Panthers travel to Durham, to square off with the Blue Devels, who have been made more formidable by their unexpected reverse at the hands of aninspired North Carolina array.

Temple and Pop Warner never fail to let the other fellow know that he has ben in a row, but Villanova, one of the best, should prevail.

Holy Cross has Bill Osmaski and too many other guns for shellshocked Carnegie Tech.

A grand Notre Dame team shouldn't be given too much trouble by Northwestern, which is somewhat weak in the middle.

Baseball Pioneer, Tips O'Neill, Taken By Death Tuesday

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—Death took another of the few remaining pioneers of baseball today—Norris L. "Tips" O'Neill, 70 years old.

The famous character, associated with the Chicago White Sox for 40 years, died in a hospital of a heart ailment after a brief illness. He was a devoted friend of the late Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, and helped him pioneer the game.

O'Neill, known wherever the sport was played, was a gabby, witty Irishman and Comiskey's most sympathetic councellor when the "Old Roman," broken hearted over the White Sox scandal of 1919, wrecked his team to cleanse it.

O'Neill started his baseball career a half century ago as a minor league catcher. He was Comiskey's personal representative when the White Sox and the New York Giants, then under the leadership of the late John J. McGraw, made a world tour in 1913. He served as a personal scout for Comiskey, digging up players who later became stars of the White Sox. He was president of the Western League for eleven years.

Fomer Beaver Man Dies On Tuesday

Andrew LaBresh, formerly a resident of Beaver, passed away Tuesday at Newberry, according to word received here. No details of the funeral arrangements are known as yet.

Swenson Brothers of Gladstone were called to take charge of the body in preparation for the funeral.

"Petrified wood" is not wood, and never was wood. The so-called "turning to stone" is caused by a gradual wasting away of the vegetable matter buried in tree trunks, with mineral matter seeping in to take its place.

Stomach and Bowel Trouble; Lived 4 Years on Milk Diet

All Medicines Failed in Her Case Until KruGon Was Given a Trial; Entire System Regulated; Feels Like a New Person

"All suffering people should realize how fortunate they are in being able to get a medicine like KruGon," said Mrs. Anna Huber, Rt. No. 1, Godfrey, Illinois (near Alton). "For the past ten years my stomach was in such a state that I was put on a milk diet by a medical authority. I was on this diet for four years but still I would have severe attacks of indigestion and my stomach would burn so. My liver was also inactive and I was badly constipated. I felt so tired and listless. Then neuritis with its intense pain also added to my distress so that I could not do my housework. I was unable to get any relief until I began KruGon."

MRS. ANNA HUBER

"KruGon is different—it went right to the source of my health troubles," continued Mrs. Huber, "and regulated my entire system and before I realized it I was eating and enjoying my meals without any distress afterwards. My bowels and liver are functioning in a normal manner but best of all that dreadful neuritis has been relieved. Those awful pains which so affected my hands, arms, and neck are gone. It is a real joy to do my work with ease now and I hope that many other sufferers will give KruGon a fair trial and obtain the good and glorious health that awaits them."
